NEW YORK

Napoli Shkolnik PLLC's dedication to representing those wronged by others remains steadfast during these challenging times. We understand the needs of our clients, whether they be individuals, families, communities or local and state governments, and tirelessly work to deliver the results for which the firm has become nationally known.

The firm's women litigators play an integral role in achieving the multi-million-dollar verdicts and settlements in the firm's many practice areas, including pharmaceutical and product liability, environmental, such as PFAS water contamination, mass torts, class actions and personal injury.

We strive to continuously engage with under-represented communities, which has led to being at the forefront of numerous high-profile cases, including the Flint Water Crisis, the national opioid litigation and lawsuits involving the weed-killer Roundup.

"Our commitment to providing an excellent client experience, which includes obtaining justice and compensation, is at the core of what we do," says founding partner Marie Napoli.

Our firm mission to lead by example is illustrated by its multiple court appointments in state and federal multidistrict litigations, legal industry accolades, including Marie Napoli's selection to the National Trial Lawyers for Women's Rights - Top 10 list, and numerous legal commentary publication and television network appearances.

The women-led firm's structure is mentor-driven to recognize and develop talent. This supportive environment demonstrates our commitment to personal growth by allowing individuals to excel and contribute directly to the firm's success.
